What happens after oral argument?

After oral argument, a designated writing judge drafts an opinion for the others' review. Final language may involve several drafts and significant collaboration.

Generally, opinions affirm or reverse lower court rulings in whole. But some affirm in part, some reverse in part, and some do both. Not infrequently, the opinion instructs the trial court about the next appropriate course of action.

Many opinions are unanimous, although non-unanimous decisions (2-1) are not uncommon. Dissenting judges usually express their views in a separate opinion that becomes part of the permanent record of the case. Judges might also write separate, concurring opinions that emphasize different points of law or facts than the main opinion.

No rules or laws govern how fast the court must issue an opinion. But the court strives to decide cases within four months of receiving all briefs, transcripts and other records.

Once issued, all opinions are published on www.courts.in.gov and maintained in the permanent records of the Clerk of Appellate Courts.

Parties can appeal Court of Appeals decisions to the Indiana Supreme Court by filing a petition to transfer within a prescribed number of days. But transfer is not automatic; the Supreme Court can grant or deny transfer with or without giving a reason.

For the Appellant

Frederick A. Turner is an Indianapolis native who graduated from Cathedral High School, Indiana University (B.S. Finance) and Indiana University School of Law-Bloomington (J.D. 1993). He is a member of the Colorado Bar (1993) and Indiana Bar (1994) and is also admitted in U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana.

Mr. Turner has practiced law in his solo law office in Bloomington since 1994. Most of his practice concerns criminal law although he handles many family law cases, including divorce/paternity issues, CHINS, adoption, and guardianship. He has briefed several appeals but this is his first oral argument.

Mr. Turner is a member of the Monroe County Bar Association and is president of the Local Board (Monroe County) for the Alcohol Tobacco Commission. He also serves as a guardian ad litem.

He is the proud father of two sons, one who attends Indiana University and one who will attend there in fall 2015.

For the Appellee

Ms. Barrow is licensed to practice law in Indiana and Louisiana.

SYNOPSIS

In February of 2014, Indiana Adult Protective Services filed a verified petition for a guardianship over the person and estate of an incapacitated person, that person being 77-year-old Sharon Izzo.

The trial court appointed both a guardian ad litem and a temporary guardian for Izzo after a first hearing, and then held a second hearing.

At the second hearing, the trial court heard evidence that Izzo had been diagnosed with schizoaffective disorder, frontal lobe dysfunction, and mild dementia. The trial court also heard evidence that Izzo was unable to make appropriate personal and financial decisions.

After the second hearing, the trial court appointed Elizabeth Ruh as guardian of Izzo's person and estate.

Izzo claims on appeal that the evidence presented was insufficient to support the trial court's findings that she was incapacitated and a guardianship was necessary.

Appellee the State of Indiana contends that sufficient evidence was presented to support the trial court's judgment.

He frequently lectures on a wide range of legal topics and in 2012 will serve as a Vice President of the Indianapolis Bar Association and on the Indiana State Bar Association Appellate Practice Section Executive Committee.

Judge Bradford is a former director of the John P. Craine House in Indianapolis, a residential alternative to incarceration for women offenders with pre-school-aged children. He is a former advisory board member of the Lawrence Youth Football League and has long been active at Castleton United Methodist Church.

He and his wife, Sam, a full-day kindergarten teacher, have five adult children.

Notable Quotations About Justice and the Courts

The complete independence of the courts of justice is peculiarly essential in a limited Constitution.

- Alexander Hamilton, Federalist 78

It is emphatically the province and duty of the Judicial Department to say what the law is. Those who apply the rule to particular cases must, of necessity, expound and interpret that rule. If two laws conflict with each other, the Courts must decide on the operation of each.

- Chief Justice John Marshall

Whatever disagreement there may be as to the scope of the phrase "due process of law" there can be no doubt that it embraces the fundamental conception of a fair trial, with opportunity to be heard.

- Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

The ultimate touchstone of constitutionality is the Constitution itself and not what we have said about it.

- Justice Felix Frankfurter

Law matters, because it keeps us safe, because it protects our most fundamental rights and freedoms, and because it is the foundation of our democracy.

- Justice Elena Kagan

Most high courts in other nations do not have discretion, such as we enjoy, in selecting the cases that the high court reviews. Our court is virtually alone in the amount of discretion it has.

- Justice Sandra Day O'Connor

Restriction on free thought and free speech is the most dangerous of all subversions. It is the one un-American act that could most easily defeat us.

- Justice Thurgood Marshall

The day you see a camera come into our courtroom, it’s going to roll over my dead body.

- Justice David Souter

Cale J. Bradford has broad experience in both the state and federal legal systems, including service as a Marion County deputy prosecutor, a public defender, a federal prosecutor, a trial court judge and an appellate court judge. In addition, he has six years’ experience in private legal practice.

He was appointed to the Court of Appeals of Indiana by Gov. Mitch Daniels and took his seat on Aug. 1, 2007. In that time, he has participated in more than 2,000 appellate decisions and more than 80 oral arguments. He has written more than 700 majority decisions, including 145 published opinions. Judge Bradford also led a successful effort to encourage the mediation of legal disputes pending before the Court of Appeals, and greatly contributed to creation of the Judicial Retention website that helps voters make informed decisions about Appellate Judges standing for retention election.

Before joining the Appeals Court, he served the people of Marion County for more than 10 years as Judge of the Marion Superior Court, including seven years in the criminal division and three in the civil division. Twice, his colleagues elected him as presiding judge of the Court.

During that tenure, Judge Bradford led two major initiatives that addressed critical criminal justice issues facing Marion County. He chaired the Marion County Criminal Justice Planning Council, which recommended improved responses to jail overcrowding, staffing and budgets. Those efforts led to the end of 30 years of federal oversight of the Marion County Jail and to security improvements at the county’s Juvenile Detention Center. He also led implementation of the Annie E. Casey Foundation Juvenile Detention Alternative
